life at the end of the twentieth century presents us with a disturbing reality otherness the simple fact of being different in some way has come to be defined as in and of itself evil miroslav volf contends that if the healing word of the gospel is to be heard today christian theology must find ways of speaking that address the hatred of the other reaching back to the new testament metaphor of salvation as reconciliation volf proposes the idea of embrace as a theological response to the problem of exclusion increasingly we see that exclusion has become the primary sin skewing our perceptions of reality and causing us to react out of fear and anger to all those who are not within our ever narrowing circle in light of this christians must learn that salvation comes not only as we are reconciled to god and not only as we learn to live with one another but as we take the dangerous and costly step of opening ourselves to the other of enfolding him or her in the same embrace with which we have been enfolded by god

life in the twenty first century presents a disturbing reality otherness the simple fact of being different in some way has come to be defined as in and of itself evil miroslav wolf contends that if the healing word of the gospel is to be heard today christian theology must find ways of speaking that address the hatred of the other is there any hope of embracing our enemies of opening the door to reconciliation reaching back to the new testament metaphor of salvation as reconciliation wolf proposes the idea of embrace as a theological response to the problem of exclusion increasingly we see that exclusion has become the primary sin skewing our perceptions of reality and causing us to react out of fear and anger to all those who are not within our ever narrowing circle in light of this christians must learn that salvation comes not only as we are reconciled to god and not only as we learn to live with one another but as we take the dangerous and costly step of opening ourselves to the other of enfolding him or her in the same embrace with which we have been enfolded by god wolf won the 2002 louisville grawemeyer award in religion for the first edition of his book exclusion embrace a theological exploration of identity otherness and reconciliation abingdon 1996 in that first edition professor wolf a croatian by birth analyzed the civil war and ethnic cleansing in the former yugoslavia and he readily found other examples of cultural ethnic and racial conflict to illustrate his points since september 11 2001 and the subsequent epidemic of terror and massive refugee suffering throughout the world wolf revised exclusion and embrace to account for the evolving dynamics of inter ethnic and international strife this volume explores how religious leaders can contribute to cultures of peace around the world the essays are written by leading and emerging scholars and practitioners who have lived taught or worked in the areas of conflict about which they write connecting the theory and practice of religious peacebuilding to illuminate key challenges facing interreligious dialogue and interreligious peace work the volume is explicitly interreligious intercultural and global in perspective the chapters approach religion and peace from the vantage point of security studies sociology ethics ecology theology and philosophy a foreword by david smock the vice president of governance law and society and director of the religion and peacebuilding center at the united states institute of peace outlines the current state of the field civility offers a thoughtful response to one of the most significant social challenges and public problems that we face in contemporary society particularly in the western world the book identifies and discusses the critical public social values and virtues that we need to focus upon and actively to promote to counter these problems and overall to develop a healthy human society to achieve an effective inclusive and just society we must first reframe how we understand politics what does politics mean and how should it be practiced politics in its true sense does not mean something ideological but rather it involves the service of the polis that is the human community we also need to recover a robust sense of public virtues the book describes some of the critical virtues and suggests how they may be cultivated the overall argument is that in a healthy society it is vitally important to concentrate more effectively on public virtues and values rather than simply to focus on encouraging material success or on creating efficient social and political systems as the main goals that we seek to develop in our societies the volume focuses particularly on the public virtues of civility having a sense of place building community solidarity and responsibility respect and compassion and cultivating discernment that is the art of how to choose well the book concludes by offering reflections on the particular role of education especially school education and of public leadership as two central elements in reshaping a healthy society based on clear societal values postcolonial justice addresses a major issue in current postcolonial theory and beyond namely the question of how to reconcile an ethics grounded in the reciprocal acknowledgment of diversity and difference with the normative if not universal thrust that appears to energize any notion of justice the concept of postcolonial justice shared by the essays in this volume carries an unwavering commitment to difference within and beyond europe while equally rejecting radical cultural essentialisms which refuse to engage in utopian ideals of convivial exchange across a plurality of subject positions such utopian ideals can no longer claim universal validity as in the tradition of the european enlightenment instead they are bound to local frames of speaking from which they project world a distinctive exposition of the main elements of the study of christian spirituality that also underlines the essentially socially transformative nature of the christian spiritual tradition virginia woolf famously claimed that around december 1910 human character changed aesthetic technologies addresses how music especially opera the phonograph and film served as cultural agents facilitating the many extraordinary social artistic and cultural shifts that characterized the new century and much of what followed long thereafter even to the present three tropes are central the tensions and traumasÑcultural social and personalÑassociated with modernity changes in human subjectivity and its engagement and representation in music and film and the more general societal impact of modern media sound recording the development of the phonograph in particular and the critical role played by early century opera recording a principal focus of the book is the conflicted relationship in western modernity to nature particularly as nature is perceived in opposition to culture and articulated through music film and sound as agents of fundamental sometimes shocking transformation the book considers the sound vision world of modernity filtered through the lens of aesthetic modernism and rapid technological change and the impact of both experienced with the prescient sense that there could be no turning back churches seek to supply their people with pastoral support and theological insight even when the community's self understanding is evolving in the midst of a pluralistic environment this anthology explores various ways in which churches of the orthodox tradition are meeting the challenges of a post modern world the authors presentations identify contemporary opportunities for christian witness promoting ministries of healing and renewal within a diverse society interesting topics such as cultural identity and ethnic conflict globalization and human rights violence forgiveness and reconciliation world mission and spirituality are discussed richard briggs first provides an introduction to speech act theory he discusses its principles and its claims and he considers its usefulness in relation to hermeneutical issues in theological and biblical studies the second part of the book demonstrates the use of speech act theory in the task of biblical interpretation especially for example in the areas of confession of forgiveness and of teaching in his conclusion the author draws out the importance of speech act theory for contemporary hermeneutics post secular philosophy is one of the first volumes to consider how god has been approached by modern philosophers and consider the links between theology and postmodern thought five pedagogies a thousand possibilities aims at providing the groundwork for articulating sites of enriching pedagogies so that critical hope and the possibility of transformation may stay alive the emotional experiences of unknowing silence passion desire forgiveness and reconciliation play an important political role in constituting critical resistance the implications of these ideas are discussed in the context of contemporary concerns about social justice conflict hope and despair these implications help us realize the potential of unknowing silence passion desire forgiveness and reconciliation as crucial pedagogical tasks and negotiate a hope that is truly critical as an alternative to pedagogies that negate the ethical and political implications of teachers and students emotional lives the present book demonstrates the need for pedagogies that enable the development of criticality without being overcome by despair the book will be of interest to academics researchers educators undergraduate and graduate students in the fields of social sciences and education and particularly in the subfields of philosophy of education curriculum theory teacher education and multicultural education
