remembering the nation dismembering women explores the ways in which the imaginative reconstruction of post apartheid south africa as rainbow nation has been produced from images of women that dismember their bodies and disremember their historical presence from krotoa eva and sarah bartmann to nongqawuse and winnie mandela samuelson tackles the figurations of some of the most controversial and significant women in the making of modern south africa drawing on feminist postcolonial and post structuralist theory and close textual readings of literary and cultural texts produced during the first decade of democracy her analysis offers a provocative critique of the formation of nationalist and feminist collectivities the book explores the constraints of subjection and the performative power of subjectivity as well as the ways in which women have been able to form collectivities on new terms book jacket this book examines the role of armenian community centres in relation to the local dwelling place of montréal the distant homeland and the rest of the armenian diaspora due to the staggering increase in migration and to the proliferation of transnational flows our conception of home has substantially changed thus what motivates immigrants to build centres representative of their ethnicity in their new dwelling places based on research at two armenian community centres in montréal this book provides insight into how these mediated social spaces embody elements that represent the distant home the diaspora and the local dwelling place through methods of participant observation and interviews this analysis demonstrates how diasporan armenians living in montréal negotiate multiple cultural identities through their involvement with armenian community centres and also how ethnic community centres articulate a collective memory in the present this book therefore sheds light on the challenges and the complexities diasporic communities face and can be useful to scholars interested in diaspora studies migration studies collective memory social work and in urban studies what does it mean to be sad what difference does it make whether how and why we experience our own and other people s sadness is sadness always appropriate and can it be a way of seeing more clearly into ourselves and others in this volume a multi disciplinary team of scholars from fields including philosophy women s and gender studies bioethics and public health and neuroscience addresses these and other questions related to this nearly universal emotion that all of us experience and that some of us dread somewhat surprisingly sadness has been largely ignored by philosophers and others within the humanities or else under theorized as a subject worthy of serious and careful attention this volume reverses this trend presenting sadness as not merely a feeling or affect but an emotion of great moral significance that in important ways underwrites how we understand ourselves and each other since the early 1990s while mainland china s state owned movie studios have struggled with financial and ideological constraints an exciting alternative cinema has developed dubbed the urban generation this new cinema is driven by young filmmakers who emerged in the shadow of the events at tiananmen square in 1989 what unites diverse directors under the urban generation rubric is their creative engagement with the wrenching economic and social transformations underway in china urban generation filmmakers are vanguard interpreters of the confusion and anxiety triggered by the massive urbanization of contemporary china this collection brings together some of the most recent original research on this emerging cinema and its relationship to chinese society the contributors analyze the historical and social conditions that gave rise to the urban generation its aesthetic innovation and its ambivalent relationship to china s mainstream film industry and the international film market focusing attention on the urban generation s sense of social urgency its documentary impulses and its representations of gender and sexuality the contributors highlight the characters who populate this new urban cinema ordinary and marginalized city dwellers including aimless bohemians petty thieves prostitutes postal workers taxi drivers migrant workers and the fact that these floating urban subjects are often portrayed by non professional actors some essays concentrate on specific films such as shower and suzhou river or filmmakers including jia zhangke and zhang yuan while others survey broader concerns together the thirteen essays in this collection give a multifaceted account of a significant ongoing cinematic and cultural phenomenon contributors chris berry yomi braester shuqin cui linda chiu han lai charles leary sheldon h lu jason mcgrath augusta palmer b©r©nice reynaud yaohua shi yingjin zhang zhang zhen xueping zhong
